Sidney Sings

Sidney was a very helpful engine. But he was also a very forgetful engine.

Sometimes, he forgot where he was going and what he needed to do!

One day, The Fat Controller gave Sidney a very important job. "I want you to collect Percy's new wheels from Brendam Docks and take them to the Steamworks."

Sidney didn't want to let his friends down.
But he was worried that he might forget something.
So Sidney made up a little song to help him remember:

Ha ha ha, hee hee hee.
A very special job for me.
All the way to Brendam Docks,
To fetch a very special box!

Now Sidney was sure that he wouldn't forget where he was going or what he was supposed to collect.

Then Sidney saw Gordon up ahead. "Hello, Gordon!" he called, as his friend whooshed past.

Oh, no! Speaking to Gordon had made Sidney forget the words to his song. And so this time he sang:

Ha ha ha. Hee hee hee.
A very special job for me.
All the way to Whiff's Waste Dump.
To fetch a boiler or a pump!

"Hello, Whiff!" Sidney said when he arrived at Whiff's Waste Dump.

"Hello, Sidney. What are you doing here?" Whiff asked.

Sidney had already forgotten!

"It's a shame you're not an elephant," said Whiff. "Elephants never forget."

"Elephants!" gasped Sidney. "Maybe that's what my special job was!" He sang his remembering song again:

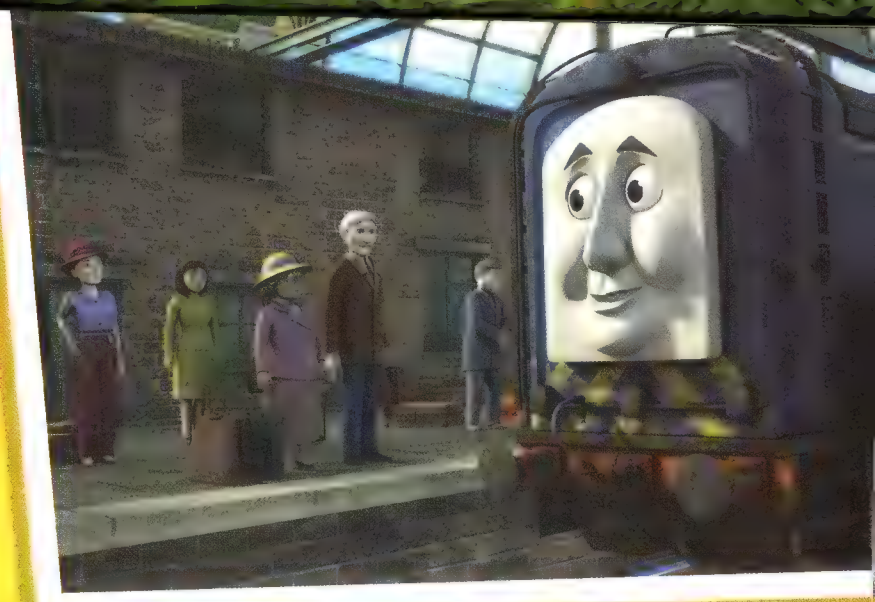
Ha ha ha. Hee hee hee.
A very special job for me.
I must get there before it's dark
To collect an elephant from the Animal Park!



Sidney rushed over to Sodor Animal Park, but he didn't see any elephants. "Oh dear," he said. "I must have got it wrong again."

Sidney drove away sadly. On the way home, he noticed a queue of passengers at Knapford Station.

"Excuse me," said one of the passengers. "We have to catch our cruise ship, but our train hasn't arrived to take us to Brendam Docks."

"That must be my special job!" cried Sidney. He sang his remembering song one more time:

Ha ha ha. Hee hee hee.
A very special job for me.
These people are going on a trip,
And I'm taking them to catch their ship!

So the passengers climbed aboard and Sidney raced along the tracks to Brendam Docks.

Meanwhile, The Fat Controller was worried. He had been waiting for hours at Brendam Docks, but Sidney hadn't arrived to pick up Percy's wheels. "Where could Sidney be?" he wondered.

Then Sidney pulled up with the coach of passengers.

"Thank you, thank you!" all the passengers called, as they headed off to catch their ship. "You were a very useful engine, Sidney!"

The Fat Controller was pleased that Sidney had helped the passengers. But Percy's wheels still needed to be delivered.

"You mean you have another special job for me?" Sidney said. He had completely forgotten his first job! "I'd be delighted to take these wheels to Percy!"

Sidney wrote a new song to help him remember:

Ha ha ha. Hee hee hee.
Another special job for me.
On me you know you can depend,
I'm going to the Steamworks to see my friend!

Poor Percy had been waiting all day for his new wheels. He was very relieved when Sidney finally pulled up to the Steamworks.

"Here I am!" Sidney said. "I've brought your new wheels. You didn't think that I'd forget now, did you?"

The End.

The Christmas Coffeepot

It was nearly Christmas, and Marion the Steam Shovel was working on Thomas' Branch Line.

As Marion dug snow away to clear the tracks, she saw a face hidden in the branches. And then the face started to speak!

"It's a talking Christmas tree!" Marion gasped.

"Wait," the voice replied. "I'm not a talking tree."

But Marion didn't listen. She hurried off to tell her friends about the talking tree.

"Are you sure?" asked Thomas and Percy.

"You must go and have a look," said Marion.

So Thomas and Percy went to see for themselves.

Thomas and Percy drove down the tracks until they found where Marion had been digging. Their Drivers cleared away the branches, and suddenly they saw what Marion had found!

"This isn't a talking Christmas tree," said Percy.

"You're right," Thomas replied. "This is Glynn, the Coffeepot Engine who used to run my Branch Line."

Glynn was glad to see Thomas and Percy. But he was feeling rather sad – he wished that he could be a useful engine again!

"I expect The Fat Controller will take me to the Scrap Yard now," Glynn said with a sigh.

Thomas and Percy were worried about Glynn. How could they help him become a Useful Engine again?

"Glynn is old, but Stephen is even older," Percy said thoughtfully. "And Stephen is still working up at Ulfstead Castle."

"That's brilliant!" Thomas cheered. "We can take Glynn to the Earl at Ulfstead Castle!"

So the next morning Thomas went back to find Glynn, and this time he brought the Earl with him.

"Glynn is a very special engine indeed!" the Earl agreed. And he arranged for Glynn to be taken to the Sodor Steamworks to be restored.

"Thank you, Sir," said Glynn. And he thanked Thomas, Percy and Marion too!

Soon, The Fat Controller arrived at the Sodor Steamworks. At first, Thomas and Percy were worried that The Fat Controller would be angry. But The Fat Controller just smiled.

"This is a marvellous idea!" he said. "I'm only sorry I didn't think of it myself!"

Then The Fat Controller asked Glynn to take him to the Earl's Christmas party.

"Of course, Sir!" Glynn said happily. "It will be just like old times!"

Later that evening, the engines gathered at Ulfstead Castle for the Christmas party.

"Another engine working at the Castle is the best present I could have wished for," the Earl declared.

"Merry Christmas, everyone!"
